INTRODUCTION

Prior to the year 1947, The Trade Disputes Act, 1929 used to settle industrial disputes. Experience of the working of the Act, 1929 revealed various defects which needed to be overcome by a fresh legislation.

The STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS appended to the INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES BILL, 1946, which was published in The Gazette of India, 1946, Part V, pp. 239-240, reads thus: - “Experience of the working of the Trade Disputes Act, 1929, has revealed that its main defects is that while restraints have been imposed on the rights of strike and lock-out in public utility services no provision has been made to render the proceedings institutable under the Act for the settlement of an industrial dispute, either by reference to a Board of Conciliation or to a Court of Inquiry, conclusive and binding on the parties to the dispute. This defect was overcome during the war by empowering under Rule 8IA of the Defence of India Rules the Central Government to refer industrial disputes to adjudicator and to enforce their awards, Rule 8IA, which was to lapse on the 1st October, 1946, for a further period of six months; and a industrial unrest I checking which this rule has proved useful, is gaining momentum due to the stress of post industrial re-adjustment, the need of permanent legislation in replacement of this rule is self-evident. This Bill embodies the essential principles of Rule 8IA, which have proved generally acceptable to both employers and workmen, retaining intact, for the most part, the provisions of the Trade Disputes Act, 1929. The two new institutions for the prevention and settlement of industrial disputes provided for in the Bill are the Works Committees consisting of representatives of employers and workmen, Industrial Tribunal consisting of one or more members possessing qualifications ordinarily required for appointment as Judge of a High Court. Power has been given to appropriate Government to require Works Committees to be constituted in every industrial establishment employing 100 workmen, or more and their duties will be to remove cause of friction between the employer and workmen in the day-to-day working of the establishment and to promote measures for securing amity and good relations between them. Industrial peace will be most enduring where it is founded on voluntary settlement, and it is hoped that the Works “Committees will render recourse to the remaining machinery provided for in the Bill for the settlements of disputes infrequent. A reference to an Industrial Tribunal will lie where both the parties to an Industrial Dispute apply for such reference, and also where the appropriate Government considers it expedient so to do. An award of a Tribunal may be enforced either wholly or in part by the appropriate Government for a period not exceeding one year. The power to refer disputes of Industrial Tribunals and enforce their awards is an essential corollary to the obligation that lies on the Government to secure conclusive determination of the disputes with a view to redressing the legitimate grievances of the parties thereto, such obligation arising from the imposition of restraints on the right of strike and lock-out, which must remain inviolate, except where considerations of public interest override such rights.

The Bill also sees to re-orient the administration of the conciliation machinery provided in the Trade Disputes Act. Conciliation will be compulsory in all disputes in public utility services and optional in the case of other industrial establishment. With a view to expedite conciliation proceedings time limits have been prescribed for conclusion thereof –14 days in the case of Conciliation Officers and two months in the case of Boards of Conciliation from the date of notice of strike. A settlement arrived at in the course of conciliation proceedings will be binding for such period as may be agreed upon by the parties and where no period has been agreed upon, for a period of one year, and will continue to be binding until revoked by a 3 month's notice by either party to the dispute.

Another important new feature of the Bill relates to the prohibition of strikes and lock-outs during the pendency of conciliation and adjudication proceedings or settlement reached in the course of conciliation proceedings and of awards of Industrial Tribunals declared binding by the appropriate Government. The underlying argument is that where a dispute has been referred to conciliation for adjudication a strike or lock-out, in furtherance thereof, is both unnecessary and inexpedient. Where, on the date of reference to conciliation or adjudication a strike or lock-out is already in existence, power is given to the appropriate Government to prohibit its continuance lest the chances of settlement or speed determination of the dispute should be jeopardized.

The Bill also empowers the appropriate Government to declare, if public interest or emergency so requires, by notification in the Official Gazette, any industry to be a public utility service, for such period, if any, as may be specified in the notification”.

A Report of the Select Committee on the Industrial Disputes Bill, 1946 was published in the Gazette of India, Part V, pp. 33-35.

The Legislature discussed, amended and passed the Industrial Disputes Bill, 1947 in the light of the Original Bill and The Reported Bill.

Though the Industrial Disputes Bill, 1947 received the assent and came on the Statute Book on 11th March, 1947, the Legislature in its wisdom brought the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (14 of 1947) into force on 1-4-1947.

This Act was extended to-

- (i) Goa, Daman and Diu by section 3 read with the Schedule of The Regulation No.12 of 1962.
- (ii) Pondicherry by section 3 read with the Schedule 1 of The Regulation No. 7 of 1963, and
- (iii) Laccadive, Minicoy and Aminidivi Islands by section 3 read with the Schedule of the Regulation No. 8 of 1965.

The Principal Act has been amended thirty-four times.

- (i) The cause of action created in favour of workman under section 33C(2) of the Act should in normal circumstances survive to the heirs;

Rameshwar Manijhi (deceased) through his son Lakhiram Manijhi v. The Management of Sungramgarh Colliery. 1994 LIR 241 (SC).

- (ii) It is, by now, well settled that the proceedings under section 33C (2) are in the nature of execution proceedings and once it is shown that the relationships of master and servant has come to an end, rightly or wrongly, it is not open to the Labour Court to proceed on the basis that it still exists and commute the monetary benefits to which the workman may, in the event, be entitled to; Canara Bank v Presiding Officer, 1994 LIR 189 (P & H).

- (iii) Once there is an admission of the existing right of the workman by the employer in regard to the benefit which the former is entitled to and receive from the latter, section 33C(2) of the Act would come into play; M.D., Oswal Hosiery (Regd) v. D.D. Gupta, 1994 LIR 487 (Delhi).
